Ottawa Essentials

Location: The city of Ottawa stretches from the border with Arnprior in the west to Cumberland in the east, and from the Ottawa River to Burritt’s Rapids on the Rideau River. Forming the major portion of the larger region of Ottawa-Gatineau and spanning the Ontario-Quebec border, the Ottawa area is Canada’s fourth largest Census Metropolitan Area (CMA), after Toronto, Montreal and Vancouver, with an estimated combined population of more than 1.1 million in 2006.

Origin of Name: Derived from the Algonquin term adawe, “to trade,” the name given to the tribe who controlled trade on the Ottawa River. The name of the Ottawa River was called Rivière des Outouais on their first map produced by the French in 1702. Ottawa would be called first Bytown after Lt-Col. John By of the Royal Engineers. The name Ottawa was officially adopted in 1855.

Nickname: Nation’s Capital

Motto: “Advance-Ottawa-En Avant” (Written in two official languages, it means “Advance.”)

City Flower: Tulip

City Flag: Adopted in 2001 when eleven municipalities amalgamated into one new city. The green and blue backdrop represents the importance of the city's green spaces and waterways. The stylized 'O' logo in the center of the flag represents the city's vibrancy and forward movement. As the centerpiece, it represents Ottawa as the Nation's Capital. It was designed to have a subtle similarity to the maple leaf and parliament buildings. The white streamers stemming from the 'O' symbolize unity, harmony and working together towards a common goal.

Coat of Arms: Granted on September 15, 1954 and formally declared in use on January 1, 1955. Components include a shield, a wreath, supporters and the city's motto.

Dates of Incorporation: 1850 as Bytown; 1855 as the city of Ottawa; amalgamated in 2001

Time Zone: Eastern Standard Time

Area Code: (613)

Postal Codes: K0A, K1A-K4C

System of Measurement: Metric

Voting Age: 18

Drinking Age: 19

Statutory Holidays: New Year's Day (January 1), Good Friday (the Friday before Easter), Victoria Day (the Monday before May 25), Canada Day (July 1), Civic Holiday (the first Monday in August — Col. By Day),

Vancouver: 2,187,721

Calgary: 1,079,310

New York City: 21,976,224

Did you know...

that recent immigrants — those who settled here in the past 10 years — make up 6.8 percent of the population? Now 70,500 recent immigrants live in Ottawa, the fourth highest concentration in the country.

G-Town

Much like the rest of North America in the 19th century, Ottawa was a decidedly blue collar town. Loggers and raftsmen literally nursed millions of logs down the Ottawa and Gatineau rivers to Montreal, where they would find markets on the eastern seaboard, and across the Atlantic. Indeed Ottawa was the centre for lumber milling and the square-cut timber industry in North America.

On December 31, 1857, Ottawa was unexpectedly dealt a hand that forever altered its course. Because it was a safe distance from marauding Americans, Ottawa was chosen as the capital of Upper and Lower Canada. The civil service was born, and Ottawa has had a love/hate relationship with it ever since.

Initially, blue-collar Ottawa had little time for the budding bureaucracy. John H. Taylor in his publication Ottawa, An Illustrated History, put it this way: "As for the locals, the civil servants . . . came to be regarded as favoured although inferior citizens in what was otherwise a working-man's town . . . They were a set of men who got high salaries for doing nothing."

From a few hundred workers in the early days, the number of employees of the Ottawa-based federal civil service grew to 30,069 in 1951. By 1961 it was 36,945 and today it is over 117,000. One in five working Ottawans work for the government. If you add in healthcare and social services, it reaches almost one in three.

Although periodically the civil service suffers reverses in employment, by and large it continues to grow unabated, giving the Ottawa economy a stability not found in the rest of the country. The research arms of the federal government have also nurtured along the high technology industry. As one astute observer put it, if the nation's capital were in Nunavut, the high technology industry would follow it there. Such is the importance and the economic power of the government sector.

YOU KNOW YOU'RE FROM

- You know your public service friends not by name but by pay scale code
- You think Marlen Cowpland is a celebrity
- You've dated Marlen Cowpland
- You remember the Party Palace
- You think Alanis Morissette is Canada's greatest celebrity
- "Go Leafs go" means watching the autumn colours disappear in Gatineau Park
- You believe the 2007 Stanley cup was rigged
- You believe lost pets are front page news
- You know the Lockmaster is a bar, not someone who installs your security system
- Meech Lake is a public beach, not Mulroney's legacy
- You went to the Canada rally before the 1995 referendum for fear you'd have to show a passport to go drinking in Hull
- You think Corel Draw and Word Perfect were the greatest software programs ever designed
- Giddyay is a standard greeting, not a sign of inbreeding
- Five levels of government are just not enough
- You believe an entire level of government is needed to run a city's park system
- Going to Hull is a party plan, not an insult
- You get excited when the feds announce a new royal commission
- A beavertail is a pastry, not a sexist remark
- You've sailed across the Ottawa River to buy beer in a corner store in Quebec
- You have never eaten a falafel when sober
- You really hate tulips
- You laugh when tourists actually expect the Rideau Canal to be open for skating
- "Under construction" road signs don't post an end date
- Global warming means a -30c winter
- The Laff is a bar, not a response to a funny joke
- You remember the old, bathtub sized urinals at the Chateau Lafayette tavern

OTTAWA WHEN . . .

- You'd rather listen to Max Keeping's newscasts than to Lloyd Robertson's
- You've never met anyone who's been fired
- Overtime is a hockey term, not a workplace term
- You are proud to have a "hot" Governor General
- You have your father's job, and you hate it as much as he did
- You visit relatives you hate in hopes of scoring government contracts
- You know what a Shawarma is, and that it is delicious
- You know that the Palladium is the Corel Center is Scotiabank Place
- You plan on attending the Ottawa Bluesfest, although it never seems to attract blues performers
- You studied computer science to make big bucks in Silicon Valley but ended up in Kanata
- You have nearly been run over by Margaret Trudeau
- You think Tom Green is the funniest man alive
- You believe that if a restaurant has a neon cactus in the window, it means fine dining
- A night on the town means driving to Montreal
- You know the Bare Fax tavern does not involve document transmission
- You get all teary-eyed when you remember expense accounts before the liberals were defeated
- You'd hate to live in Toronto because you'd have to work too hard
- You know that red embassy plates on a car means tickets are for little people
- You think the humane society is the cat sanctuary on Parliament Hill
- You enjoyed the 1998 ice storm
- You're used to seeing 18 wheeler trucks driving on King Edward and Rideau St.
- You cringe every time someone comments on how clean the city is
- You remember when the Ottawa Senators played at the Civic Centre
- You bought your first beer at a Hull corner store

Did you know...

that Lt.-Col. John By was the judicial authority in early Bytown? By earned a reputation for his fairness and sense of humour in dealing with miscreants. Disputes he failed to resolve in chambers, he ordered settled in a boxing ring on Rideau Street.

They Said It

Not surprisingly, the new capital provoked good and ill-natured comments.

1. Essayist Goldwin Smith called the new capital “a sub-arctic lumber village converted by royal mandate into a political cockpit.”

2. Governor-General Lord Monck in a letter to the Rt. Hon. Edward Cardwell in London: “It seems like an act of insanity to have fixed the capital of this great country away from the civilization, intelligence and commercial enterprise of this province, in a place that can never be of importance and where the political section of the community will live in isolation and removed from the action of any public opinion.”

3. Anthony Trollope, the British novelist wrote: “I know no modern Gothic purer of its kind or less sullied with fictitious ornamentation, and I know no site for such a set of buildings so happy as regards both beauty and grandeur.”

Place of Birth: About 25 percent of Ottawa’s residents are foreign born. More than 20 percent of Ottawa residents are members of visible minorities.
